Schools are learning organisations that continuously strive to do better for the children and young people in their charge. However, effecting lasting change is a difficult process that rarely receives sufficient attention: how will changes be managed and what steps are needed to maximise the chances of success?

In this informative and practical webinar, Tom Martell, Programme Manager, Education Endowment Foundation, will draw out the specific challenges that exist when implementing effective change in regard to reading and writing.

Specifically, Tom will take you through a 'Ready Made Staff Meeting', designed to ensure that you gain the maximum support from your staff and begin the process of change in the most efficient way possible.
